A very good plus copy (faint offsetting from fly plates). Bruns O-18; Goodspeed, p. 276. ¶¶ This rare first edition is a compilation of short articles by a number of noted anglers — Fred Mather, Seth Green, Henry P. Wells, F.E. Pond, James A. Henshall, and others — illustrated with color depictions of nearly 150 artificial flies. Orvis was a fly-tyer and tackle maker (his daughter, Mrs. Marbury, published "Favorite Flies and their Histories," in 1892). The book went into several editions, all enhancing the Orvis trade.

Inscribed with a nice angling sentiment, "Xmas 1908. Fred, In memory of days and nights on the Nipigon, Will".

States Bruns: "All copies costly. The work ... is probably the greatest tackle promotion ever perpetrated, and certainly the only one which became 'an important American work.'" A reprint was published in 1968. $750
